Does the school meet the independent school standards?

Yes

What is it like to attend this school?

At Easthorpe School, pupils receive guidance and support in a highly nurturing environment. Staff warmly welcome pupils as they arrive. Pupils who are new to the school quickly settle into school life. This is because staff know pupils' individual needs and backgrounds very well. Pupils thrive here.

Staff have high expectations of every pupil. They use their knowledge of each individual to adapt the curriculum to help pupils succeed. Pupils engage very well with their learning. They have positive attitudes to their education and attend well.

Pupils enjoy earning rewards for their positive attitudes and engagement. They plan their own rewards, such as going swimming or having a pyjama day. Pupils look forward to 'golden time', when thoughtfully planned activities are on offer, such as football, dance or building marble runs.

Staff show high levels of understanding and empathy towards pupils' social, emotional and mental health needs. Pupils receive strong pastoral support. Some pupils have had mixed educational experiences prior to starting here. A few pupils sometimes need support to regulate their emotions in school. Staff are skilful in the support they offer. They focus on helping pupils to manage their own behaviour and emotions. In so doing, they work closely with parents and carers.

Pupils are resilient, tenacious and enthusiastic to succeed.

What does the school do well and what does it need to do better?

The curriculum is ambitious, well planned and fully sequenced. Staff know the pupils, and their needs, extremely well. The curriculum is designed effectively to respond to pupils' individual needs and the important information outlined in pupils' education, health and care (EHC) plans. There are personalised targets identified for each pupil. All staff are acutely aware of pupils' individual needs. Teachers monitor pupils' progress carefully, skilfully adapting teaching strategies as needed. Consequently, pupils achieve exceptionally well.

Teachers have strong subject knowledge across all areas of the curriculum. They consistently deliver lessons of great quality. During lessons, teachers regularly check pupils' understanding and skilfully address misconceptions. Teachers are ambitious for all pupils to achieve well.

The school recognises that reading is a key skill for life and staff are dedicated to instilling a love of reading in pupils. Reading happens every day, and pupils get lots of reading opportunities, such as reading to an adult, guided reading sessions and listening to the teacher read a story to them. Teachers and other adults have received training to ensure that they deliver the phonics programme well. Pupils who struggle to learn to read get extra support and practice.

Pupils behave well in lessons and around the school. They respond positively to high expectations and clear routines. Staff manage behaviour skilfully and help pupils to regulate themselves and to manage their emotions and behaviour. Pupils benefit from highly successful strategies to help them succeed in their education.

The programme for pupils' wider personal development is at the heart of the school's curriculum. Staff talk about how 'it is everything we do here'. The school wants to make sure that their pupils experience a wide range of opportunities that will enrich them and their learning and provide them with essential life skills. This is clear to see and is fundamental to the vision for the curriculum. At Easthorpe, the pupils' learning is not limited to the classroom. The school has organised a range of visits, including, for example, trips to the zoo, supermarkets, Christmas markets and many more. These experiences provide pupils with many opportunities to develop their life skills. For example, these visits support pupils' learning in mathematics, with pupils calculating prices, paying for items and checking that the change they have been given is correct.

Spiritual, moral, social and cultural development, and learning about British values, are embedded in the curriculum. For example, pupils learn about democracy through voting for their class rewards. They learn about the rule of law through learning about laws, why they are important and then creating their own class rules. Pupils are tolerant and respectful.

The school puts pupils at the centre of everything it does. Staff feel very well supported and are extremely proud and happy to work at a school where they are part of a close-knit team, dedicated to supporting the development of every pupil.

The proprietor, those responsible for overseeing the school, and school leaders have close oversight of the school's strengths and areas for further development.

The proprietor ensures that the school consistently meets the independent school standards. Regular health and safety checks maintain the premises to a high standard. School policies reflect the latest statutory guidance. The safeguarding policy and the relationships and sex education policy are available on the school's website. The school complies with schedule 10 of the Equality Act 2010.

Information about this inspection

Inspectors carried out this inspection under section 109(1) and (2) of the Education and Skills Act 2008. The purpose of the inspection is to advise the Secretary of State for Education about the school's suitability for continued registration as an independent school.

The school meets the independent school standards. These are the requirements set out in the schedule to the Education (Independent School Standards) Regulations 2014.

- Inspections are a point-in-time judgement about the quality of a school's education provision.
- This was the first routine inspection the school received since the COVID-19 pandemic began. Inspectors discussed the impact of the pandemic with the school and have taken that into account in their evaluation of the school.
- The inspectors met with the headteacher and executive headteacher. The lead inspector met with the chair of the board of directors.
- The inspectors carried out deep dives in reading, mathematics, personal, social and health education (PSHE), and history. For each deep dive, inspectors met with subject leaders, visited a sample of lessons, spoke to teachers, and looked at samples of pupils' work. The lead inspector listened to some pupils read to a member of staff.
- Inspectors also considered the curriculum plans for art, physical education, religious education and science.
- To evaluate the effectiveness of safeguarding, inspectors reviewed the single central record; took account of the views of leaders, staff and pupils; reviewed safeguarding records; and considered the extent to which the school has created an open and positive culture around safeguarding that puts pupils' interests first.
- The inspectors observed pupils' behaviour in lessons and around the school site during playtime.

- Inspectors reviewed a range of documents, including: the school's self-evaluation; a variety of policies; information about pupils' attendance and behaviour; and, pupils' EHC plans, individual education plans, and individual risk assessments.
- The inspectors spoke with some pupils and staff. An inspector considered the responses to Ofsted Parent View, Ofsted's online survey for parents, and the school staff survey.
- To check the school's compliance with the independent school standards, inspectors considered relevant documentation and reviewed facilities at the school's site.
